

"The Painless Extinction of Formerly Free Australia"

Recommending an article by David Bell, Senior Scholar at the Brownstone Institute

ELIZABETH HART

NOV 15, 2023

I've just read David Bell's recent article, see: The Painless Extinction of Formerly Free Australia

This is a very good article, describing what has gone on in this country over the past nearly four years of the manufactured Covid debacle...it's the demise of frogs...

If you place a frog in cool water and slowly raise the temperature, it's said that you can boil it without it noticing and fighting to free itself...

Australia is...a world leader in the extinction of human rights and Western concepts of democracy... It came to the boil so slowly that, still, hardly anyone has noticed.

David Bell describes the destruction of freedom in Australia, courtesy of easily malleable Australians:

Australia was under a brutal dictatorial regime (factually), and most people loved it. Their media pretended the government was protecting them from chaos, that the rest of the world was dying, and only far-right extremists supported human rights in a 'pandemic' that killed at an average age of 80. By shooting at people and beating up old ladies, the government was keeping them safe... (My emphasis.)

After years of working to suppress dissent

the Australian government is now introducing legislation that will prevent the average person from openly discussing stuff the government does not like...The government is excluding itself from such sanctions - it will be able to make stuff up with impunity...

David concludes:

...Australians have been fully boiled now, and it appears they will really do pretty much whatever they are told. It is so much easier to go along than to take a stand. And if your neighbours and the media are pretending everything is just like it always was, then it is simplest to just agree...

We are about to find out whether the frogs really boil to oblivion, or whether they recognize the water is scalding and make the effort to leap to freedom - even risking a fall and injury in the process. After all, standing against tyrants was never actually supposed to be safe.

(My emphasis.)

The frogs have to wake up!!! Are the malleable Australians capable of jumping out of the hot water and challenging tyranny?

Here again is the link to David Bell's article - essential reading for anyone willing to wake up and fight for their 'free country': The Painless Extinction of Formerly Free Australia.

18 Likes

Discussion about this post

Comments

Restacks

Write a comment...

Amat Amat 15 Nov 2023

♥ Liked by Elizabeth Hart

I was thinking back to my own experience in the uk and my reaction. I am ashamed to say that in the first few weeks I fell completely for the fake pandemic scenario but then I started to think and the logical part of my brain kicked into gear. I investigated other people's views online and followed a trail of information that revealed the duplicitous machinations of the government and public health. I came out of my enforced imprisonment only to find that all the people I connected with physically were still under the enchantment of fear from the fake pandemic and were asking no questions. For some reason most people were mentally frozen in time and continued to play out the circular thinking of fear and anxiety feeding more fear and anxiety and then seeking out what they think is safety and protection by following to the letter the governments diktats no matter how bizarre or dangerous (experimental injections). A perceived fear wielded expertly is a very potent weapon and will make people comply willingly it is so depressing to witness humans welcoming captivity and tyranny

❤️ LIKED (3) 💬 REPLY

📤 SHARE

2 replies by Elizabeth Hart and others

David White (Oz Dave) Oz's Substack 17 Nov 2023

...

Thank you, Elizabeth. Dr David Bell is spot on I think. And thank you for the links before - your past experiences on the subject are interesting. I'll have a closer look today.

📄 Despite the February 2022 protests in Canberra, "Australia has been shown to have produced some of the most docile, authority-loving, uncritical people in the developed world: people ripe for brainwashing and manipulation." Professor Gigi Foster (UNSW), Brownstone Institute, 17 May 2022

https://brownstone.org/articles/australia-champion-covidiot/?fbclid=IwAR2tH77Y8_LWF_ZCucQxbn9aADSQkyUoKxPAb0jT8B72pcywPeaXhteRdC8

❤️ LIKE 💬 REPLY

📤 SHARE

4 more comments...